A touring party of Girls' Hockey and Netball players enjoyed a very successful summer tour to Malaysia and Singapore, providing the girls with wonderful preparation to negotiate the rigours of their domestic Netball and Hockey campaigns.

Expeditions

Sixth Form expedition to Ladakh, Northern India, Summer 2009.
Middle School expedition to Norway, Easter 2010.

DRAMA

Three plays were performed in the Christmas Term, as well as productions by the Lower and Middle School Drama Clubs. For two nights the Lower School put on a production of The Masque of the Red Death, based on the short story by master of horror, Edgar Allan Poe. Over fifty Lower School pupils took part and were involved backstage, in addition to those taking the limelight. Camani Lall from the Thirds was a magnificent Red Death and Matthew Tyler from the Fourths was very powerful as the wicked Prince Prospero. Jarleth Eaton from the Upper Fifth helped direct the production.

The Middle School followed with a production of Living with Lady Macbeth, which tells the story of Lily (superbly performed by Harriet Ryland), a girl excluded from the in-crowd at school and overlooked by most people, but who is determined to audition for the part of Lady Macbeth in the school play and show everyone that she isn't the shrinking violet they think.

The Sixth Form production was Oh! What a Lovely War, directed by Mrs Fair. This ensemble piece demanded great teamwork and was a resounding success. There were songs, jokes, dances, comic scenes and poignant scenes. All action took place in front of a huge screen which depicted the horrors of World War I, reminding the audience of the reality of war as they were being entertained, and the whole was held together by Jessica Singer, who acted as Master of Ceremonies.

The Easter Term was dominated by the musical, South Pacific. Mrs Wilde, with Mr Perrins as Musical Director, directed over 100 students, mainly from the Sixth Form, but also from the Middle School, and they entertained packed houses with this 1940s classic. Jessica Singer took the lead role of Nellie and gave a superb all-round performance, as did John Whiting who rendered the classics of Some Enchanted Evening and This Nearly Was Mine with passion and conviction. Philippe Marks and Lucinda Thomas were compelling as the romantic but doomed couple Cable and Liat, and fabulous comedy moments were supplied by Mycroft Halliwell-Ewen as Luther Billis and Katie Dobson as Bloody Mary, who gave fine renditions of Bali H'ai and Happy Talk. William Barnes and Tom Gerard were excellent in the roles of Captain Brackett and Commander Harbison and the whole production really came to life, packing a punch with the male and female choruses of marines and ensigns.

During the Summer Term the outdoor amphitheatre between the new Music School and the Junior School was used for the first time. Members of the Middle School put on a version of Lewis Carroll's Alice in Wonderland. Richard Ackroyd, a member of the Lower Sixth, had written the play and he was aided by other members of the Lower Sixth.

Bugsy Malone was the choice for the Lower School musical and this played to full houses for two nights. Set in the prohibition era in America, with its speakeasies and mob rivalry, the cast of over 70 provided moments of hilarious slap-stick humour. Callum Fisher and Louis Roach were the two gang leaders, with Tom Griesbach as the eponymous Bugsy. The humour came not only from the antics of the two gangs, but also from cameo parts, such as Michael Fair and Sam Montieri as undertakers, or Oscar Haynes and Charlie Morgan as the two cops. Charlotte Beesley, Madeleine Lavery, Harry Morgan, Nadine Nijim and Alanna Wall all sang beautifully.

Ye-Ha! was the Junior School J3 and J4 Drama Club's performance. This was another large cast, with 45 on stage, and was the story of a Wild West town and how it was saved from its unscrupulous mayor by an unlikely local hero and a mysterious stranger, played by Thomas Mitchell and Abigail Humphreys.
